Portrait of Perfection!

Teacher Tips

A simple activity that is great to use when meeting a new class or when trying to raise self-esteem and positivity with younger students.

The aim of the task is for students to write a word or sentence in each box that makes them feel proud, happy, safe or loved.

This could simply be something they like e.g. chocolate cake or could be deeper e.g. a memory or special place.

Ideally, this activity should be left open so that students don't feel pressure to name people.

As an additional activity, students may wish to draw a picture of what perfection means to them. This could be put in context e.g. draw your perfect day. Or could be left open, with students drawing pictures of people/objects that are important to them.
